OPENING RECEPTION

Saturday, September 16, 3pm - 5pm

The theme Flat Land references one of the most conspicuous aspects of South Florida - its lack of topography. Between the mountainous sky and increasingly omnipresent water is a city ever-changing, both ambitiously vertical and sprawling, struggling to accommodate conflicting interests on a thin plane of usable land, lapped by two bodies of water: the Everglades and Biscayne Bay. Nature, unrelenting and leveling through seasonally violent storms, and even less predictable human acts, causes us to react, reflect and weigh these conflicting interests.
